

Consulting Bootcamp Fall 2019

Who: Engineering and Business Majors.

What: This program is designed to teach soft and hard skills that will get you started on learning necessary skills to become a consultant in the future.

When: 1 class a week for 4 weeks from September 30th to November 1st. Class times determined by students availability.

Apply at NOBEPSU.com

About NOBE: The University Park Chapter of NOBE was officially founded in September of 2014 in the Harold and Inge Marcus Department of Manufacturing and Industrial Engineering when the founding members realized the value in combining their technical background with the principles of economics. The group ultimately decided to set forth to provide all students with a working knowledge of both financial and technical concepts and terminologies necessary to function in a corporate business setting. Today, NOBE serves to bridge the gap between technical and non-technical disciplines by allowing students of all departments to collaborate in an environment that provides value-added opportunities. We challenge students to go further, and we encourage students to build personal networks and portfolios which will ultimately lead to competitive advantage when entering the workforce.